LAYMAN'S LAWYER

The Layman's Lawyer, a local TV program funded by the Georgia Civil Justice Foundation and IOLTA funds, was strongly supported by the Cobb Bar last year.

A dozen or more Cobb County attorneys have actively participated in the program both as featured attorneys and panel members answering calls from interested viewers.

Lynn Rainey was featured on the issue of crimes against the person. Bill Gentry spoke about personal injury law. Matt Flourney addressed the issue of the hiring of an attorney. Mike Harrison spoke about home contractor problems, and Rob Flourney spoke about alimony.
